

The circus is no fun for me!

A couple of hours entertainment for you means a lifetime of imprisonment for circus animals, who spend their lives travelling when not performing or training. Wild animals should not be performing tricks!

We love the circus! Those with human performers, not animals.

Research confirms that a circus animal does not teach children anything, except that we can use and exploit animals, because we are able.

Given the choice, no animal would choose to live an unnatural life of captivity that allows none of their natural behaviour, regardless of the kindness of the treatment. Wild animals should not be subjected to forced transport, human handling, noise, trailer movement, confinement, doing tricks and crowds of people. These animals should be sent to a sanctuary where they can be safe and free from exploitation.

Many countries have banned animal circuses, for good reason. You can see the list on <http://www.bwcsa.co.za/animal-exploitation/entertainment>

The SPCA has roundly condemned the inclusion of wild animals in the circus and launched their Celebrate the Wildness of Wild Animals campaign in March 2011. Because they inspect the animals general health does NOT mean they approve!
